Hallo,

Options are illustrated in red

Southwest Loop, Level A:

Arrival in San Francisco, California. I'll meet you up at the airport. Depending on arrival time, I'll go with you to celebrate this trip in the city. (1 night)

In the morning we pick up our bikes and then follow one of the most beautiful roads of the world to San Simeon. The path is the goal. (1 night, 380 km)

In the early morning we're heading down to Los Angeles. We visit a few surprises which I have chosen for you, and so we'll be late at the hotel. The next day can be off- bike and we could go to the Universal Studios. If time is left, we go to make some photographs at the Hollywood sign (2 nights, 390 km)

Freshly rested we're ready to hit some grandiose roads to Palm Desert, a sleepy spot in the desert. (1 night, 275 km)

Before we meet (valid for all national parks $ 80 park pass) the first time the famous Route 66, the mother of all roads, we make our way through the stunning Joshua Tree National Park. (1 night, 404 km)

Let's go and see the Grand Canyon. Almost exclusively on Route 66 we make our way to get there. It's like a time travel backwards. (1 night, 392 km)

The next morning, we'll see sunrise at the Grand Canyon and then we make our way to Mexican Hat, Utah, where we can have the best T-bone steak on this planet. It's damn expensive - but also damn good and damn big :-) (1 night, 322 km)

The Monument Valley belongs to Navajo tribe and costs around $5 admission, but without taking a jeep tour into the Valley you haven't really seen it (there are various tours starting from $ 75). We are going to make it up to Lake Powell after all. (1 night, 242 km)

The next day we'll visit the Antelope slot canyon ' (ca $ 46), and then, Horseshoe bend '. The long hike will be a great exercise for all of us. There are also many Indians shows that you can visit. (2 nights)

Recoverd we make our way to Bryce Canyon, which is famous for its limestone columns which are shimmer red depending on the sun stand. (1 night, 240 km)

It goes on to Mesquite, where we ride through the fabulously beautiful Zion National Park ' and experience a nature you'll be dreaming about. (1 night, 263 km)

I'll take you on detours to Las Vegas in Nevada via, Valley of Fire' and were we stay for 2 nights for some fun on Jetskis. We would also do a small day tour to make it back to the city to celebrate our adventure. (2 night, 226 km)

It's getting hot in the Death Valley, the lowest point on earth. This beautiful place is truly quite different in many ways. (1 night, 293 km)

We're heading to the backbone of California, the Sierras, where we can rest in a pool in Mammoth Lakes. (1 night, 325 km)

Next early morning we go to see Mono Lake, and then we ride into the legendary Yosemite National Park, one of the most popular parks in the United States. On stunning roads and landmarks we go to Mariposa in California to see Sequoia Trees. (1 night, 239 km)

Our journey leads us through the Valley to San Francisco, which I believe is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. If time allow before we check in at the hotel, we ride a few corners you shouldn't miss out. (1 night, 284 km)

We return the motorcycles late afternoon, so we will take advantage to check the area around- and in San Francisco, where we go later to celebrate our common motorcycle adventure. (1 night)

I'll bring you to the airport and help you to check in etc.
